

Some Tips on Writing an Excellent Essay

What is an Essay?

The word “essay” literary means an “attempt”. In an attempt to be crowned with success, certain techniques, workable methods, and perseverance are necessary. An essay is an organized collection of ideas, facts, and figures about the topic nicely and elegantly presented.

In other words, the essay must be well organized and well planned, and nicely presented in a way that the reader should himself develop an interest in reading. It must look tidy and should consist of simple and easily understandable language. It must have an interesting way of presentation. Above all, it must be used on logical ideas, facts, and figures relevant to the subject.

How to Write an Excellent Essay?

Essay writing is an art. One may have a thorough knowledge of a topic or a subject, but put one’s knowledge logically and coherently requires logical skill, practice, and subtitle techniques’.

An essay can have many purposes, but the basic structure is the same irrespective of the subject or the topic. You may be writing an essay to argue a particular point of view or to explain the steps necessary for the welfare of society. Either way, your essay will have the same basic layout. If you follow a few simple steps, you will find that the essay is almost written. You are required to apply your ideas, facts, and figures, which are required to write an essay.

The following simple steps will guide you while writing an excellent essay.

Select the topic.
Outline your ideas.
Write the introduction.
Write the body.
Write the main points.
Write the sub-points.
Elaborate on the sub-points.
Write the conclusion.

Selection of a Topic for Your Essay

The selection of a topic for an essay is an important task. Evaluate each topic you have to choose out of the list of topics. You must simply consider each one individually. Select the topic

About which you have detailed knowledge about facts and figures. You must be sure that it is the topic/subject about which you are particularly well-informed. You must be sure that it is the topic/subject about which you are at least moderately passionate. Of course, the most important factor in choosing a topic is the number of points and ideas you have about the topic. Even if none of the topics you can find particularly appealing, select a topic that may not be selected by other candidates or may be selected by a few candidates. They will minimize the chances of immediate comparison of the essay written by you.

Before you move on to write an essay, give a re-thought to the topic you have selected. Once you are sure that your topic will be suitable, start writing.

Some Tips on Writing an Excellent Essay

1) Use simple words rather than complex words

Keep your writing style simple. Follow the standard rule in all editing: prefer the simpler word while writing. This means writing extra or more rather than additional; help rather than assistance; use rather than utilize. Although you might need specific or technical words, depending on your subject or topic, you should choose the simpler word instead of the more difficult word.

"When something can be read without effort, great effort has gone into its writing."

Enrique Jardiel Poncela

Your essay should be interesting as well as easy to understand, By using simpler words, you can make your essay much better.

2) Layout your essay to help the readers

All the viewpoints you want to explain need a start, a middle, and an end. Traditionally, we think of the introduction, Body, and Conclusion as the key parts of an essay. Logically, this helps us set the context for the essay (introduction), present the facts, and develop a set (conclusion).

Writing an Introduction to an essay

The introduction to an essay

The introduces the main idea of your essay. A good introduction gets to the heart of the subject and attracts to create interest in the readers. Most students write a poor introduction that needlessly repeats information and turns off the reader to develop a negative opinion about the essay. If you want to top grade for your essay, must start with strong and logical views to attract the attention of the readers.

3) Writing the body of an essay

This consists of supporting paragraphs, point-wise and logically arranged ideas that show the maturity of the writer. Make out a list of the points you wish to develop, place each point step by step in its own paragraph and elaborate on each point with supporting facts, details, and examples. Each paragraph elaborates on each point with supporting facts, details, and examples. Each paragraph should clearly present the relevant information and develop an argument based on the given facts and a review of opinions. This part of the essay has 90% information and must satisfy the reader's viewpoints. The body of the essay must reflect solid reasons and show a clear understanding of the subject, and develop your points logically.

4) conclusion

The conclusion poses a great impact on the readers about the views offered by the writer. You must give your logical views in the conclusion that could be able to touch the hearts of the readers. It must put a strong impression on the readers about the thoughts applied in the essay. The conclusion itself should reflect the inner vision of the writer. It should produce the main theme of the writer to the readers. It should be able to convince the readers and make them well conversant about the whole story discussed in the essay.