

Composition on Duties of a Student Or, Students and Social Service

Similar to:

Duties of a Student

Introduction: Students are the greatest force of a nation. They are the future leaders of a country. They can build or destroy a nation. Hence, they play a vital role in society as well as in a country.

Primary duty: the primary duty of students is to acquire knowledge. They should also try heart and soul to make themselves worthy citizens. For this, they should use most of their time in education. Then they should pay attention to the welfare of society.

Service to illiterate people: the most important duty of student lies in removing illiteracy among the people. Students can do this duty during there holidays. They can go to villages and make people aware of the importance of education. That can set up night schools for this purpose.

Service to common people: students can help common people in different ways. They can help the farmers by telling them of the need for scientific methods of cultivation. They can also help people by telling them about the importance of birth control.

Service in national health: students can do a lute for national health. In this case, a female student's role is very important. They can teach illiterate womenfolk how to bring up theist children and the care of their health. Besides, all students, in general, can teach ordinary people how to keep the environment free and clean.

Service in time of natural calamity: students can help the suffering people during calamities. Through the red cross society, they can work for all the distresses of the world.

Conclusion: the students have much to do for society. Through social service, they can enrich their minds and serve the people. The students can loophole the image of the nation through their social service.