

Composition on Uses and Abuses of Satellite Channels

Telecasting the Television (TV) programmes of the different countries of the world, satellite channels have added a new dimension to television. Satellite telecasting gives us the opportunity of knowing the culture, politics, trade and commerce, present happening and past incidents of the world. But at the same time, satellite channels telecast, vulgar and violent programmes that have the negative impact on the soft mind of the young generation. Thus satellite channels have both positive and negative sides.

Satellite channels broadcast the programmes related to the culture of the different countries. We can enrich our culture combining our own culture with the positive traits of another culture. Again the political condition of other countries, their initiative to develop the country, their move towards the improvement of the condition of the people and political approach come to us through satellite channels.

Thus we are inspired to lead our country towards betterment. Satellite channels have a positive impact on our trade and commerce. Through satellite channels, we can know the condition of the business around the world. So, it becomes possible for us to have an effective presence in the business world. Again, satellite channels give us ample opportunity of enriching our knowledge.

Various programmes of such as, scientific programmes, the debates, and informative programmes broaden the domain of our knowledge. In providing entertainment the role of dish antenna knows no bound. After the day's routine work, various programmes like musical shows, dramas, comics and other programmes help us to get rid of fret and fatigue of the monotonous life.

Despite these positive aspects, satellite channels have also some negative aspects. Firstly, it kills our valuable time. Many children pass more time in watching TV than in reading. Not only the children, the adults also sometimes cannot avoid the charm of the satellite programmes disregarding the wasting of time.

Sometimes, satellite channels also telecast vulgar and violent programmes. The incident, dress of the actors and actresses, their immoral activities mislead the young generation. Again, the violent movies may take them to the path of violence.

Nothing can be out and out good. Satellite channels are not an exception. However, should not watch the bad programmes of satellite channels and should watch only those programmes which are supported by morality and are helpful for enriching our knowledge.
