

Dialogue Between Myself and My Friend About How to Eradicate Illiteracy from The Country

Question: Illiteracy is a great problem in Bangladesh. It badly hampers all our development programs. It is considered as a curse for the nation. Now, write a dialogue between yourself and your friend, Farhan about how to eradicate illiteracy from the country.

Answer: A dialogue between Anis (myself) and Farhan (my friend) about how to eradicate illiteracy from the country:

Anis: Farhan, how have you enjoyed the minister's visit to your school?

Farhan: Oh, it was great. He was pleased with everything about our school.

Anis: What did he say about our education?

Farhan: Well, he discussed the effects of illiteracy. He termed it as a curse.

Anis: What's your opinion about it?

Farhan: I also agree with him. It's the root cause of ignorance.

Anis: Do you think that illiteracy eradication is essential for development?

Farhan: Certainly. I think no development effort can be successful without illiteracy eradication.

Anis: What should we do then?

Farhan: We should work hand in hand to educate the illiterates.

Anis: We also need to create people's awareness so that they can send their children to school.

Farhan: Yes. of course. It is the key factor. Govt. has already taken many steps to remove illiteracy.

Anis: We must co-operate with the govt.

Farhan: Yes, we must come forward in this respect.

Anis: I agree with you. Thank you very much.

Farhan: You're welcome.
