

Essay on Tourism in Bangladesh

[Hints: Who a tourist is; Difference between a tourist and visitor, Name and importance of some places of visit in Bangladesh; People helping the tourists; Conclusion.]

Who a tourist is: A tourist is a person who visits a place for pleasure. Nobody knows him in the place where he visits. He is a newcomer. He goes to a foreign land in order to gather knowledge from different historical, traditional and cultural places.

Difference between a tourist and visitor: A tourist and a visitor are not the same persons. A tourist is a stranger but a visitor is a known person. The purpose of visiting a tourist is to enjoy the sights and beauties of nature but a visitor visits a known place and he comes to see his kith and near ones. A tourist stays in a hotel or in a motel. On the other hand, a visitor stays with known friends and relatives in their houses. A tourist needs a guide but a visitor needs no guide.

Names and importance of some places of visit in Bangladesh: Cox's Bazar is the most important good-looking place in Bangladesh. Paharpur, Mahasthanghar, Mynamati, Sonargaon are the very prominent worth-seeing places in the country.

Lalbagh Kella, Bahadur Shah Park, National Mausoleum at Savar. The zoo at Mirpur, Botanical Garden beside the zoo at Mirpur; Baldha garden at Wari is worth mentioning good looking places at Dhaka in Bangladesh. All these places are very attractive and charming to the tourists.

People helping tourists: Tourists are strangers. Those people who help the tourists in new places are called tourist guides. Tourist guides show the tourist's comfortable hotels to stay in. They receive tourists and answer their telephone calls. Some tourist guides help tourists with heavy boxes and packets. People helping the tourists must be good at history and quick at arithmetic.

Conclusion: Tourism is an industry of Bangladesh. So, we should take steps to make all the good-looking places in Bangladesh more attractive and charming to make it a more lucrative industry in the future. Thus, it can be a good source of earning foreign exchange.
