

Short Essay On The Person I Admire Most

I like my people. I admire a lot of them. Despite this, the person whom I admire most is my mother. She is a woman of great heart. She has endured a lot of troubles to bring up me. She has given me birth bearing a tremendous suffering. Since my birth, she is taking care of me. As I came to know later, I was very naughty in my childhood. I often make troubles to my mother. I was indifferent to take foods. My mother did not feel disturbance any time. She feeds me with great care. If I feel ill, she nursed me with loving care. When I came round, her joys know no bounds.

My mother cares for managing the whole family. She does all the household chores. She cooks rice, cleans houses, washes clothes and looks after her family. My mother is aware of the health of our family members. She always tries to keep our house germ free. She cooks a balanced diet. She serves us such foods which are necessary for our good health.

My mother is frugal in habits. She counts her earnings and spending. She does not like to waste money. My father keeps the money to my mother for managing the family. My mother is economic and she tries to do things which are needed for the family.

My mother is a woman of good temperament. She never gets angry at a slight excuse. She tries to manage things in the cool brain under any circumstances. She is well mannered and sociable. She keeps a good relationship with the neighbors. She is really an ideal mother. I like to thank Allah to be a child of such mother.
