Describe the kinds of writings in it.

Answer: A college magazine is an annual or periodic publication of a college, through if the students and teachers can have the opportunity to show their creative power. I like it very much because it plays a vital role in one's college life. A student can express his hidden thought and feelings to other students. There he may be introduced to others with his intellect. The students can exercise literature through it. The editor of the college magazine is a teacher. The articles that find a place in a college magazine usually include poems, short stories, jokes, one-act plays, riddles, and other writings relating to college affairs. The editor first invites writings from the teachers and the students for the magazine. After proper scrutiny and editing the best ones are selected and sent to the press for publication and printing. In a word, a college magazine is the mirror of college both inner and outer.
