

Paragraph on My Mother

Question:

Whom do you like most?

What does your mother do for you?

When does she become anxious?

When does she become happy?

What does she teach you?

What does she do in the family?

Which objects of mine do your mother anxious about?

What do you feel?

Answer: Of all the people in the world, my mother loves me most, and I love her from the core of my heart. To me, she is like a living goddess who takes all kinds of pain and cares for my sake. When I am sick, she spends sleepless nights with my sickbed. When I come first in my class examination she becomes perhaps the happiest person on earth. From my childhood, I have been greatly influenced by my mother. She has always guided me on the right path at every step of my life. She has taught me discipline, manners, and a sense of duty towards others in the family and in society. I remember that she used to relate to me many oriental and mythological tales when a child and did not know how to read and write. She has taught me to love my country and my fellow citizens. She helps me every day in preparing my homework given by the class teacher. My mother is an ideal woman in my life. I feel fortunate for being born as her son. She is very anxious about my health, my education, and my prosperity. I feel that there is no other person nearest to the heart than the mother in this world.

Or,

Paragraph on My Mother

Question: Answer the following questions to form a continuous paragraph. (100 words)

- What is your mother like?
- How does she manage your family?
- How does she feel for you?
- How does she spend her pastime?

Answer: We live in a nuclear family. Our family consists of four members. My father, mother, and only sister are the other three members. My mother likes gardening, cooking, going outside, rearing children, etc. She keeps control of the family. She gets up early in the morning. After preparing the breakfast, she distributes it among us. Then she accompanies my sister up to school. She comes to the school during the time of the breaking of the school. My mother guides us in all possible ways. In this way, she manages the family. She is also very affectionate and feels for us highly. She is always anxious about her children. Her only aim is to make us established in the future. She is our friend who helps us to mitigate our problems. My mother spends her pastime watching television, reading novels, and taking care of her garden. She spends most of her pastime in the kitchen. I love my mother very much.

Or,

My Mother Paragraph

Question: Write a paragraph about 'Your Mother' by answering the questions below.

- What is your mother like?
- What is she?

How does she take care of you and other members of your family?
How does she behave with your neighbors and relatives?
How much does she feel for you?
How does she spend her leisure time?

Answer: My mother is an ideal housewife and devoted teacher at a government college. She is now forty-five. She is well-educated, polite, gentle, and modest. I am very fond of her. She takes care of me and other members of our family. My father is also a professor at a government college. My grandfather and grandmother live with us. They are old and sick. My mother always takes care of them. If I fall ill, she becomes very anxious and she does not sleep for a while. She passes the whole night without taking a rest or a meal. But when I come around, she becomes happy. Her heart is filled with joy. If anybody falls ill in our family, she becomes anxious. She looks after me with great care. She teaches me at home very sincerely and affectionately. In their leisure time, she reads many kinds of books. She also looks after her garden in the afternoon. She tries to help the poor neighbors and their relatives. I love my mother very much.