What did the doctor suggest?

Answer: I had been suffering from an acute headache for quite a long time. So, one day my father made an appointment with Dr. Islam over the mobile phone. His chamber is at Dhanmondi. I went to Dr. Islam's chamber with my father. The chamber was well decorated. We sat in the waiting room and was waiting for my turn. Some other patients were also found waiting. In the waiting room, there was a television set, some dailies, and magazines for the recreation of the patients. When my turn came. I entered into the doctor's chamber. The doctor motioned me to the bed beside the window. I went and lay down. The doctor felt my pulse and took my temperature. Then he asked me to unbutton my shirt. After I had done so, the doctor used his stethoscope to listen to my heart and chest. He also measured my blood pressure, looked at my tongue. examined into my throat and peered into my eyes. Then he asked one about my food habits. When the doctor finished examining me, he said to me that there was nothing wrong with me. He advised me to take exercise regularly. He also told me to ha/ye plenty of rest and sleep and to take such type of food that contains much food value.
