Question: Answer the following questions to form a continuous paragraph. (100 words)

Do you like novels? What type of novels do you like?

Why do you like them?

Who is the central character of the novel you have read or are reading?

Why do you like him?

What do you feel when you remember the novel?

Answer: I am fond of reading novels. I like all types of novels but I like particularly such kind of novel that deals with love and revenge. For this, I like Wuthering Heights by Emily Bronte. This is an extraordinary novel in English literature. I like it because I get something very rare from it. Heath Cliff is the central character of this novel. He was betrayed by the love of Cathy. From this event, he hardened his mind to take revenge on Catherine (Cathy). Though his way of taking revenge was not direct, he took revenge indirectly on the other generation of Catherine. Everybody hates Heath Cliff but I love him for his feeling for Catherine and deep love of Catherine. I feel sad when I remember the novel and think of the fate of Heath Cliff and Catherine.

Do you like novels?

What type of novels do you like?

Why do you like them?

Who is the central character of the novel you have read or are reading?

Why do you like him?

What do you feel when you remember the novel?

Answer: I like to read novels. I like all types of novels but I like particularly such kind of novel that deals with our social problems. For this, I like "David Copperfield" by Charles Dickens. This is a masterpiece in English literature. I like it because this novel played an important role in changing the education system of the then society. David Copperfield is the central character of this novel. He lost his father at an early age. His mother got married again and thus David's sufferings started. We get a clear pen picture of the institutions of those days. I was pained when I found David going through physical and mental punishment. I feel sad when I remember the novel and think of the characters of the novel.
