

Paragraph on The Village Doctor

Question: Write a Paragraph about 'The Village Doctor' by answering the following questions

Who is a village doctor?

What is his qualification?

What is the condition of his dispensary?

How does he serve the people of the village?

Why is he so important in the village?

Answer: A doctor who lives in the village and gives, medical aid to the villagers is known as a village doctor. The village doctor has no medical degree. He has a poor dispensary. He has a chair and a table for himself and one or two benches for the patients in his dispensary. There is an almirah in the dispensary for keeping some medicine. A village doctor renders the very essential service to the villagers. He attends to patients at his house or dispensary and sometimes goes out to visit the patients. In the village, a qualified doctor is not available. The village people have to depend on the village doctor. A village doctor is, therefore, an important person in the village.
