

Short Paragraph on Corruption in Bangladesh

Question: Write a paragraph in about 120 to 150 words about Corruption in Bangladesh by answering the following questions.

What is corruption?

What are the causes of corruption in Bangladesh?

What is the mean of corruption?

In how many ways is it happening in Bangladesh?

What are the effects of corruption in our country?

What measures have been taken by the government to cure corruption?

Give your own suggestion to get rid of this menace.

Answer: Corruption means adopting unfair means to achieve something illegally. At present, corruption has become one of the most alarming problems in Bangladesh. There are a number of causes behind corruption. Unemployment, lack of good governance, lack of morality, the inadequacy of salary, political instabilities, etc. have led to the expansion of corruption. In Bangladesh, corruption has enlarged its paw in administrative, commercial and political sectors. The most usual form of corruption is bribery. However, there are other forms of corruption too, such as the unequal distribution of government funds, nepotism in public services, etc. Corruption cripples a nation. The economic disparity among people becomes acute and for foreign investments are minimized. Therefore, it is time for us to fight against corruption. Anti-Corruption Commission has already been formed to prevent corruption. Besides, it is necessary to upgrade the morality and human values of the people. Media can also take a strong stand against corruption. In addition, good governance, an increase in job facilities and strict enforcement of legal rules can prevent corruption. Finally, all of us must raise a campaign to combat bribery and corruption for a better and more corruption-free Bangladesh.